DUBAI — Dubai International Arbitration Centre (DIAC), in cooperation with King's College London, will be organising a 4-day training course on international commercial arbitration on November 7-10, 2006, in response to the widespread use of arbitration to resolving disputes in international business and economic transactions and due to the need of increasing the numbers of internationally-qualified arbitrators.

Dr. Hussam Al Talhuni, Director of DIAC, said that the training course aims at enhancing the participants' awareness in the field of commercial arbitration and further contribute towards their self-development in becoming international prospective arbitrators and experts. He noted that the course will include lectures and workshops that focus on the unique aspects of international commercial arbitration.
